THAT KOOTENAY COLOURING Maxwell Smith Interviewed

Mr. Maxwell Smith, Dominion fruit marks inspector, was in town on Friday and a Courier reporter had the pleasure of a conversation with him in which he substantiated the truth of the surmise made in this paper last week that his remarks as to the colouring of fruit this year were relative to the whole province, not to any one part of it, and that the word "Kootenay" had been deliberately interpolated. Mr. Smith stated he had given identically the same interview to the Nelson News and Grand Forks Sun, and the latter had reported him correctly with the exception of the word "roots," which should have been "fruit." He deprecated the tendency in some localities to seize on every utterance of a public official and seek to twist it into a "boost" for these districts to the disadvantage of others.

Coming to non-controversial matters, Mr. Smith urged the importance of Kelowna taking a keen interest in the convention of the North-West Fruit-Growers' Association, to be held at Vancouver on the 3rd, 4th and 5th December. Mr. Smith is secretary of the Association this year, and it is largely through his efforts that the meeting is being held in Canada, the first to be so held in fifteen years. The best authorities on fruit will be present from East and West and from both sides of the line, and the papers read and discussions should be productive of much valuable information.

Mr. Smith has secured a grant of $500 from the Provincial Government and has also succeeded in obtaining subscriptions from fruit dealers, fruit growers' societies, &c. With this money medals will be purchased to be awarded in three competitions. Three medals will be given in each competition; first, solid gold, value $100; second, combination gold and silver, value $50; third, silver, value $25. The competitions will be:

1. For best five boxes of apples, five varieties, one box of each.
2. For best general display of fresh fruits occupying a floor space of 5 feet square. Full scope will be given to designers to make any arrangement they may consider best. The fruit may be shown by the grower or by associations, and no restrictions will be made except that it be grown in the district whence sent for exhibition.
3. For the best box of commercial apples, the exhibitor or his representative to have the privilege of addressing the judges and the convention for seven minutes on the merits of his exhibit and on the district in which it was grown.

These competitions will give an opportunity not offered before of measuring B.C. fruit against its greatest competitor in the open market, the fruit of the western states of Washington, Oregon and Idaho, and obtain its true value. Mr. Smith considers the test even a better one than the Royal British Horticultural Society's show in London, where he says the competition was not as keen as it will be in this case. He is confident as to the success of the province in the ordeal.

The programmes of the convention will be in the form of artistic souvenirs, which will no doubt be kept in memory of the occasion by the people in attendance, and the medals will also have appropriate designs which will cause them to be highly appreciated by the winners apart from their intrinsic value and the victories they will typify.

Why should not Kelowna make an effort to capture some of the coveted trophies?

A. & T. ASSOCIATION

A general meeting of the A. & T. Association was held in Raymer's Hall on Saturday. There was the usual difficulty in getting a quorum, but finally fifteen members turned up and business proceeded. President Spear was in the chair.

Mr. W. C. Cameron was nominated to fill the vacancy in the office of Vice-President caused by the resignation of Mr. Alex. McLennan, but declined the honour and Mr. W. C. Blackwood was elected. Mr. H. W. Raymer declined nomination as director, and Messrs. DuMoulin and Taylor were elected to fill the vacancies caused by the resignation of Mr. A. B. Carle and the promotion of Mr. Blackwood.

A resolution was passed in favour of obtaining the location at Kelowna of one of the three experimental farms to be established in B.C. by the Dominion government. Nearly every person present spoke strongly in favour of the proposal, and co-operative action will be taken in the matter with the Board of Trade and Fruit-Growers' Association.

Mr. Blackwood said some people who gave special prizes were under the impression that by doing so they became entitled to the privileges of membership and, in this belief, had not paid their membership fee.

The general opinion was that donors of special prizes should also pay their membership fees, otherwise they would simply be getting back that amount on their specials.

In answer to an enquiry by Mr. Pridham, it was stated the gate receipts this year will be divided equally between the Association and the Race Committee.

A proposal by Mr. F. R. E. DeHart to open the hall at 7 p.m. on Tuesday and have the Kelowna City Band in attendance caused much discussion, some members holding that the receipts from non-members would not pay the extra expenses, but it was finally adopted, members to be admitted free and non-members on payment of 25c. Only adults will be admitted.

THE FALL FAIR

But a few days now remain to the fall fair, which should, by rights, in an agricultural community, be the biggest event of the year; yet, sad to say, it has been treated with comparative indifference on the last two occasions by the very people who should have been heartiest in its support. Attendance alone—in this respect the people of the valley have not been lacking—will not make a successful show; exhibits are needed, any quantity of them, even if only of ordinary quality. Quantity tells in the aggregate to the eye of the spectator, and nothing could look worse than long expanses of tables thinly covered at intervals with plates maybe of the choicest fruit. Profusion gives the best effect, and the valley grows so much fine produce that there should be no stint as to the quantity that can be exhibited, even if not all of prize winning quality.

On our front page will be found a fervent appeal from Mr. F. R. E. DeHart to the farmers of the district for aid in the capture of the District Prize, the premier distinction of the New Westminster exhibition. He dwells on the necessity of making the local show a success as a corollary to the possibility of winning at New Westminster, and we heartily agree with him. The directors of the A. & T. Association wrought wisely when they appointed a manager for the fair and for the collection of the materials for the District Prize competition, and they went one better when they selected a man of such fervid enthusiasm and local patriotism as Mr. DeHart to fill the position. If the valley does not win the coveted prize, it will not be for lack of energy in the collection and arrangement of exhibits. Mr. DeHart has already secured a large quantity of choice fruit, which he has arranged in glass jars, and many fine samples of grains and grasses; and when our local fair is over we hope he will have an ample supply of material at his disposal.

So, Farmers! do not let such considerations hinder you as "This is not good enough to take a prize." Not all can be prize winners, and if the same reason was to actuate everyone, we would have no exhibits at all, such is the natural modesty of our people! Bring along that old pumpkin that has been staring at you with a reproachful glare for the past month, wondering if it is to be left to rot. Bring in your melons, your big potatoes, your fruit, and try to make the dairy department something worthy of the name. Surely the valley has cows and chickens that produce something worth showing.

A long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether, and the fall fair will be a memorable success and the District Prize within our grasp.

The directors of the Kelowna Hospital acknowledge with thanks the receipt of $10 towards a heating system from Mr. D. Bertrani per Dr. Boyce.

ASIATIC IMMIGRATION

The recent riots in Vancouver have transferred the question of the restriction of Asiatic immigration from provincial to imperial consideration, and there is hope, on the principle of good coming out of evil, that the British government will no longer object to a restrictive measure framed on the lines of the "Natal Act," in order to preserve Canada, and particularly British Columbia, as a white man's country.

In a rural community such as ours we see little of the stress of competition that is gradually being felt in the Coast cities and which will make itself felt increasingly amongst the white tradesmen in a small way of business and in many lines of industry that, hitherto, the imitative Asiatic has not exploited. It is in the large cities that not only are the effects of competition more evident, especially in times of financial stringency, such as we have had in the past and may have to endure again, but also the squalor, immorality and insanitary conditions attending the housing of Asiatics, which make the oriental quarter of a western city worse than the slums of New York. We intend to print a forcible description of an Asiatic rabbit warren in Vancouver whenever space will permit. Meantime, we take pleasure in publishing herewith one of the most forceful articles on Oriental labour we have ever seen, written from a workingman's point of view and published in the Victoria Colonist.

Sir.—Will you grant an opinion on a topic that is causing wide-spread discussion in this community and elsewhere on the dubious benefits derived from the importation of Oriental labor, written from the point of view of a white laborer? You have many articles and opinions expressed in your worthy paper touching this and other subjects. Perhaps you will be lenient enough to find space for an expression on this particular bogey from one whose ranks will be the first to feel the effects. Anyway, you are not responsible for my sentiments, deal not harshly with me, publish, if only as "unique," an opinion from a real, live white workingman.

As to whether an influx of Oriental laborers into a white man's domain is wise from an economic standpoint I ask, have you been in Honolulu, the Honolulu of today, and seen what cheap labor for sugar plantations has done for that locality? Ambitious to investigate, the sons of old Nippon hiked from the once providential plantation and found ready employment in the city—everyone hired them—storekeepers, saloonkeepers, merchants and contractors; white workers here first began to make themselves scarce. Our little brown hero worked, watched and saved his wages and was complimented for his efforts and all went well. Bye and bye, by dint of co-operation of small savings, Hashnu, O'Hara and Togo branched out over the street as "tailors," "general merchandise have got," "very best wines for to sell," and such signs met the eye, some highly diverting pigeon English. One Lung ran a wholesale liquor outfit, while modest Osutu tried his luck in leather goods and prices forthwith took a tumble. One by one, Mr. Whiteman sold his goods and invested in a second cabin ticket, while two by two our cute little allies opened up. A saloon keeper told me he refused $25,000 for his property eight years ago; he will now take $5,000, perhaps less. That was a year or more ago. Globetrotter will not have to stretch his imagination to-day to imagine himself back in Yokohama with a dash of Hongkong thrown in—the Honolulu of to-day. Children of either or mixed Kanaka, Japanese, Chinese and Corean blood disport themselves in the public squares, well fed and clad to all appearances. I admire our competitors' many apparent virtues—their thrift, industry, etc., but when you play them against us it's a touch-down for them every time. I have studied them in China, Japan and the Philippines, etc., observed their modes of living (?) and production. I have a large portmanteau that cost me sixteen yen ($8), in Kobe, hand-made; a manufacturer in this city informed me he could scarcely buy the leather at that figure when shown same. I had a suit of clothes made in Yokohama for $15 that a 'Frisco tailor said he couldn't duplicate for $35. It's no use, Mr. Editor, they hold the trump; bring them over in large numbers with their habits, industry, thrift, shrewdness and marvellous crop of babies, and, although you might call this fair country Columbia, it would be a misnomer to add "British" once they lay hold for a few years.

China and Japan conjointly will eventually conquer the world's commerce; their millions once directed towards a common aim with modern methods will win an economic victory more potent than men and guns could accomplish.

Now for the other side. High priced white labor is blamed for the prevailing increase in the cost of living, an increase that even Europe feels. Wages for unskilled labor have risen, say, fifty cents a day, average. The more aristocratic trades, of course, increased greatly, being better equipped by virtue of exclusive unions. But, sir, are not watered stock, high rates of interest, excessive speculating in land and real estate, combines and syndicates that handle produce, etc., trusts that regulate, far more guilty? A prominent lumberman in this country recently stated that wages in the camps and mills will have to come down, but, he said, the price of lumber would remain about the same, as "production had increased in cost from other causes." Wages go up and the purchasing power of the dollar depreciates. A white working class circulate their wages among the various channels of industry. I maintain that well paid labor is in the end, more conducive to genuine, general prosperity to the community at large. Poorly-paid, it produces slums, crime and deterioration. The Oriental worker is more frugal, more exclusive; he banks with his own banks, as in 'Frisco, Los Angeles, etc., he deals among his countrymen and generously sends a large portion of his savings to poorer relatives living in his own country, where many return, money and all. I could write on and present further arguments, but length and fear of trespassing on your generosity forbids. In conclusion, I will say it is one thing "to have" and another "to hold." Encourage yellow labor and as surely as the morning mist disperses before the rays of the rising sun (significantly the Japanese emblem), so will your white worker disappear to other shores and Hawaii repeated on a larger scale. One or two virile weeds sown in a garden will eventually spread and destroy the flowers, if unchecked; the Oriental has the virility, as history can attest—the survivor and seemingly "fittest to survive" wherever planted. Solicitous of their future, friends, co-workers of mine, already express their intention of going to New Zealand or Australia where the influences that make it possible and profitable for Oriental labor to enter are not so numerous or so strong as in America, and among them, toilers all, may be found a nomadic New Zealander.

Yours truly,

Tramp Talks

Being the Adventures of a Dilapidated Gentleman

BY M. QUAD

"Being in the tramp line," said the Dilapidated Gentleman, as he wigged the big toe sticking out of one of his shoes, "is like being in the plumber business. The profit is 100 per cent, and you really don't know how to get out of it. There are some discouragements, as a matter of course, but even the undertaker has his ups and downs and wonders why he is not the sea man."

"While I am not advising a young man who has ambition to go to Congress and be owned by a Trust to enter upon the tramp line, I contend that it is a profession having its funny side and opportunity for advancement. In most other lines, you have to adopt a motto and lug it around on your back. In this one you simply put on your hat and jog along till you strike the first farm-house."

"I have often wondered that the butcher, the ice man and the coal man didn't go crazy with the monotony of the thing. Same thing over and over every day in the year—same complaints from customers of short weights and tough meats. There is no monotony in the life of a Dilapidated Gentleman. When he isn't meeting up with adventures the police are at hand to give him a rap on the head to prevent existence from becoming dull. I never encountered a minister, lawyer or editor, held up in their towns like so many woodchucks, without failing to pity them."

"Various States and communities have passed laws against the D. G., but most of them are dead letters. It is bound to be so. The tramp is a man that is looked for in every community and his appearance creates a stir."

"To begin with, there is an air of romance surrounding his case. He may be the son of a ditch digger, or he may be the son of a lord. It may have been disappointed love that started him on the road, or he may be a land-stealing Congressman seeking to escape the punishment of his crimes. The country constable sees a chance for a fee. The country squire sees the same thing. The village lawyer ditto."

"In the country the arrival of a D. G. at a farmhouse breaks up the deadly monotony. They haven't seen a stranger for three weeks, and the excitement extends clear down to the dog. After being fed the wayfarer is pumped for information. Farmers tell you through the newspapers that a tramp won't work. Bless your soul, but is a member of the profession is any talker the farmer won't let him do a stroke. He'd rather hear him talk."

"The D. G. learns one thing early in the game, and that is that not one person in a hundred hopes to find him anything but bad. There are so many good men around that they are no novelty. The farmer would refuse a tramp even a drink of sour milk if he thought him a thoroughly good man and on the tramp simply through misfortune."

The tramp knows this and takes advantage of it. When I have been supplied with a meal at a farmhouse and the farmer and his hired man and two sons have come up from the field and gathered around me, I start off with:

"You may wonder why I am in this profession. I will tell you. Fifteen years ago, just as I had left college, I fell in love with a beautiful girl. As far as I could tell she reciprocated my affections."

"What's reciprocated?" asks the hired man.

"Now, Joe, don't you butt in here," cautions the farmer. "We don't care what it means, so's we hear the story."

"She seemed to return my affection, I corrected, and for several months I was happy. Then I received an anonymous letter saying that the girl was false to me."

"What's anonymous?" asks the farmer's wife, as she pares away at a dishpanful of potatoes in her lap.

"Now, Hanner, are you going to gab in?" protests the farmer, and a wrangle lasting five minutes takes place. When they have got through I go on:

"I paid no attention to the letter, but within a week a second one came. In this the writer told me to be in one of the city parks at a certain hour, and I could satisfy myself that he was telling the truth. I tore the letter into shreds and tried to drive the thought from my mind, but when the evening came I was in the park. The demon of jealousy had been roused within my breast."

"Say, this is getting pretty good," said the farmer, as he looked around with a smile, and the hired man and the sons hitch around on their chairs.

"I had not been in the park fifteen minutes when I saw my love. She was heavily veiled, and got up to look like a washwoman, but I could not be deceived. She had hardly appeared when a young man joined her, and she took his arm and the pair walked up and down in conversation for half an hour. During that half hour I was in Hades."

"Where is that?" asked the hired man.

"Hades means hell, and you shut up," replied the farmer.

"There seemed every reason to believe that my darling was playing me false, but I did not rush out upon the pair. I hung on to myself and waited. I gave her time to get home, and then I followed and rang the bell. She herself came to the door. She hadn't had time to take her things off. She uttered a little scream when she recognized me, and sank down into a chair. I told her what I had seen and demanded an explanation. She wrung her hands and wept and said she couldn't give it."

"By John, this is the real thing," said the farmer, as he stands up and sits down again.

"I insisted on an immediate explanation, and when Sadie still refused, I lost control of myself. I seized and raised a chair to smash the chandelier and clear out the shanty, and with a low moan she sank at my feet and gasped once or twice and was dead."

"By thunder," exclaims the farmer and his two sons and the hired man in chorus, while the farmer's wife drops a half-peeled potato on the floor and holds up her hands in amazement.

"I had killed my darling without laying a hand on her," I went on. "Her heart had given way under stress of emotion. There was an inquest, and the coroner's jury acquitted me. On the same day I found out that the young man in the park was Sadie's own brother. He was a wild young man and had lost a thousand dollars on the races. He told her that if she couldn't get the money for him he would commit suicide. She got it and met him and handed it over. Naturally, she did not want me to know about it. You see what an injustice I did her. Years and years have elapsed, but I can never, never forgive myself."

"And that was what set you to tramping?" asks the farmer after a silence.

"You are just the same as a murderer," adds his wife, as the tears fall upon the potatoes in the pan.

"Yes, that's why I am on the tramp. I buried her and put a monument to mark the spot, and for forty nights I slept on her grave. I could not stay there, however. My conscience kept crying out, and I took to the road to get a change of scenery and thoughts. Yes, I am the same as a murderer, and I don't suppose Heaven will ever forgive me. As I walk the roads by day and nestle in the haystacks by night, the face of that poor girl is ever before me. Times without number I have awakened at night to hear her cry out my name and ask me not to judge her too harshly. It will be so to the end."

"It's a durned sad thing," says the farmer, as he stretches out his legs and trusts his hands deep into his trousers pockets. "Seems to me you ought to have given that gal more of a show."

"I would," adds the hired man.

"That's the way with men," sighs the wife, as she picks up another potato. "If they get a bit put out with a woman they will break her heart as quick as not. Boys, let this be a warning to you."

"And you can stay all night," says the farmer, as he turns to me, "and maybe this evening you can scare up another story or two. I don't believe a durned word about that gal, but sittin' here has kinder rested my back, anyhow."

The only yellow pearl the summer girl fears is freckles.

"Jim Hellsso, of the Arizona Kickiats, is one of the meanest and most contemptible wretches walking the face of the earth to-day, and why an all-wise Providence permits him to keep on living we fail to understand."—The Jaybird Times.

"We hereby pronounce Jim Hellsso a thief, robber, murderer and a coward, and we stand ready to give him satisfaction any time he can brace up his craven heart to ask it."—Pine Hill Recorder.

"What do we think of Jim Hellsso? We answer that the Territory of Arizona ought to be ashamed of itself for permitting him to cumber the earth as long as he has. He is a man steeped to his ears in every crime in the calendar and should have been lynched years ago."—Letter from Judge Ramsey.

"We have it on the very best of authority that Jim Hellsso got his start in life by murdering his mother and robbing the house of $25. He looks just like a man who would do the trick. There are a few decent men in Giveadam Gulch, and why they don't put a rope around Hellsso's neck is an enigma to us."—Grass Valley Tribune.

"We understand that the villain holds the offices of mayor, postmaster, United States Marshal, Fish Commissioner, Forrester and two or three other things, and yet is after more. He even has the impudence to want to be Governor. Such a man as he wouldn't be allowed to live a week in Montana."—Silver Hill Herald.

"We made a journey of forty miles to Giveadam Gulch last Summer for no other reason than to pull Jim Hellsso's nose and show him up for the craven he is, but he broke for the woods and we couldn't come up with him. He is a boaster and a coward."—Letter from Major Davis.

"We have been looking through history for the last six thousand years to see if we could find a meaner man than Jim Hellsso, but we have had to give it up. Any day that we hear of his being shot or hung we will donate the sum of $50 to charity."—Wolf Creek Leader.

"Think of it! Resting in his private editorial graveyard, and forming the subject of boasting about once in four weeks, are eighteen men who have fallen by the guns of this knock-kneed, lop-shouldered villain who claims to carry all Arizona in his coat-tail pocket! No wonder that an Idaho paper asks if we have all become jack rabbits in this Territory. We hereby call a public meeting at Proctor's Hall for next Tuesday night to take the necessary steps to remove Hellsso to the first syllable of his name."—Lawton Free Press.

"The story comes to us, and so well attested that we must fully credit it, that Jim Hellsso murdered a family in Kansas before coming to this Territory, and that he escaped conviction by bribing three men to swear to an alibi. If ever the word 'murderer' was written across the face of a human being, it can be read on the phiz of this bloody-handed villain."—Red Gorge News.

"Villain!
"Liar!
"Incendiary!
"Robber!
"Coward!
"Murderer!
"And that's what we think of Jim Hellsso, of the Kickiats."—Mountain News.

"Don't ask us about Jim Hellsso. We have traced his villainous career back to where he committed his first murder, and we want to see him dangling from a limb so badly that we can't sit still. Any time the people are ready to do him justice we will give $25 apiece for his ears."—Letter from Colonel Stivers.

"We lived in Giveadam Gulch for three months previous to establishing this paper and of course we met Jim Hellsso almost daily. We found him to be a smooth, suave chap, seemingly ready to do anyone a favor, but back of it all we could look down into a heart as black as Nero's. We boldly assert that on three different occasions he tried to poison us, and once he shot at us in the dark and claimed that he took us for a cat. We don't want to be too hard on him, but must say that the sooner he is underground the better it will be for the rest of mankind. As it is now he is simply encouraging thousands of others to enter upon careers of villainy."—Poker Bend Gazette.

"It was told to us while visiting Giveadam Gulch on business that Jim Hellsso one day enticed a poor little orphan boy out into the woods with him on pretense of picking berries, and then and there murdered him to satisfy his craving for blood. The Gulchers suspected a crime and made a search of the woods, but Hellsso had chopped up and burned the body, and the few bones found in the ashes were supposed to be those of a coyote. If this story is not true, why would they tell it against him in his own town?"—Letter from a Chicago Drummer.

"Jim Hellsso had a father and mother. At the age of ten, as we have ascertained by tracing his history back, he was reproved by his parents for chopping up a cow with an ax, and that night he locked all the doors and windows and set the house afire. His parents were aroused and tried to get out, but the young villain mocked their efforts, and when they were roasted he was found dancing a jig and whistling 'Yankee Doodle.' That's the kind of a man who bosses Arizona."—Big Falls Banner.

"Jim Hellsso.
It is well so
That you and I have never met;
But we'll meet some day,
And I'll 'get' you anyway.
And the country will be rid of you,
you bet!"
—Red Valley Journal.

MRS. HENRY SYMES' ADVICE TO WOMEN SEEKING HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Superfluous Hair on Face

Would you advise me to use pumice stone for removing hair on the face? In a small place of this kind it is impossible to get the electrolysis treatment.

How long does it take a person to use the Vaucatre treatment? Have no more hair than a young girl.

If you cannot procure electrolysis treatment for the superfluous hair on your face, I advise you to try using a liquid depilatory, which you can procure from any reliable druggist. It is impossible to state how long it will be necessary for you to take the Vaucatre remedy, as some cases require a much longer time than others for development.

To Prevent Hair Falling

I have read your talks, and thought I would write to you. I am troubled with my hair falling out; every hair has a little bulb on the end of it. Now, if you can tell me of something that will stop it from coming out and make it grow again, I will be more than grateful. I read every week where you help somebody, and hope you can help me.

Falling of the Hair

Tincture of auz. vomica, 1 ounce; spirits of rosemary, 2 ounces; alcohol, 3 ounces. Apply several times a week to the roots of the hair.

Admirer Asks Advice

I read your page, and would be glad to have advice from you. The pores all over my face have been very much enlarged for several years, causing a red, very oily and rather inflamed-looking complexion. Most of the time there is a hot burning sensation. Will you kindly give me your best treatment for this trouble, with some kind of bleach? How would you advise me to wash my face? At present I break out into pimples and black water once a day, and afterward the cold water.

You will find the following lotion most beneficial for enlarged pores and inflamed condition of your skin. Instead of washing your face daily with soap and water, cleanse it with a good face cream.

Wash for Delicate Skin

Boracic acid, 1 dram; distilled witch hazel, 3 ounces; rosewater, 3 ounces. Use as a wash when desirable.

Annoying Eruption

I am greatly interested in your weekly column of various remedies for skin eruptions, etc. My wife was poisoned by erysipelas about 15 years ago, which took effect on her chin, and although apparently cured at the time, it has since developed into a sort of chronic eczema, with acute eruptions. At times there is no trace of it on her chin, except a very slight discoloration, and at other times it breaks out into a sort of pimples, full of pus, covering a spot about the size of a silver dollar and becoming ing very red. She has tried several salves prescribed by physicians, but without any permanent results. We would greatly appreciate any suggestion you see fit to give in this inquiry in your columns. READER.

It is impossible for me to give you specific advice in regard to any constitutional trouble through this department. However, I know of a case similar to the one you describe which was greatly benefited by taking a good blood purifier and making outward applications of a salve made of pure mutton tallow and flowers of sulphur.

Wants Thicker Lashes

Please tell me something that will make the eyebrows and eyelashes grow. Will trimming help to thicken them? Miss E. B. Painting the eyebrows and lashes every night with a brush dipped in sweet oil, slightly warmed, will promote their growth. Trimming will injure the lashes.

To Remove Stains From the Hands

Your generous advice to others is so freely given that I, too, feel free to ask you. I have used the salt bath for a year daily—washing the face with it regularly. My complexion is not as good as it was before my long illness. The nature of my disease may have been the cause, but I have wondered whether the wash has anything to do with it. I may make several requests. I will do so, if, however, it is too much for one time. Will you be so kind to tell me what to rub with? Can you tell me with what to rub neck and arms, to prevent catching cold when wanting to go to dress for evening wear? wear low-neck dress?

The Careful Bath—What it Does for the Complexion

By Dr. Emma E. Walker

(Copyright, 1906, by A. S. Barnes & Co.)

YOU already know that careful attention to all of the laws of hygiene will do more for your complexion than any lotions that were ever concocted. Bathing, diet, exercise, breathing, cheerfulness, all go to make up the sum of beauty. If you are careful in all these respects it will be very difficult for you not to have a good complexion.

Nevertheless, the different skins vary in their structure, and you must use your good sense in caring for your own. If, for example, you have an oily skin, you must take certain precautions that you would not need to observe if your skin were dry.

Under the subject of baths, we have discussed one of the essential factors in the care of the skin. The skin of the face, perhaps, deserves more care than that of any other part of the body, because it is more exposed than any other part, and it is more delicate.

Abrupt changes of temperature, both of air and water, are very irritating. In washing the skin of the face, the first thing should be to wash the hands thoroughly; then pour out this water and use perfectly fresh, pure water for the face. Various troubles are caused by rubbing the soiled hands over the face, for, although you may not be conscious of it, the hands harbor many microbes, even when you think they are comparatively clean, and these you will easily rub into the skin of the face, if you handle it very much.

The ideas of many authorities are at variance concerning the question of the temperature of the water for bathing the face. A good plan is to wash the face at night with hot water and soap. Follow this by friction with a towel that is not hot enough to irritate. If you choose you may dip your hands into cool water after the hot bath, and gently dab it over the face.

After the bathing, do not go out immediately into the air, but wait a little while, for the delicate face skin should be protected against sudden changes, and especially against cold.

Always keep a separate wash-cloth for your face, and, indeed, it is well to have two for this purpose, one for the soap and one for the clear water. Don't use a sponge, for it harbors bacteria, and you cannot keep it clean. The best material for a wash-cloth is said to be raw silk. After using the cloth, wash it, and put it into boiling water. Keep it clean!

You must never relax in your attention to the skin, for the most exquisite cleanliness is one of the chief secrets of health and beauty.

If the water from the tap is hard, and you cannot get any rain water, put a few drops of ammonia, or a pinch of borax, into the bowl. This will soften the water, and make it very cleansing besides. Compound tincture of benzoin, about a dozen drops to the bowl of water, will be grateful for the skin. The circulation of the skin of the face needs stimulation as well as that of other parts of the body. Facial massage, if properly applied, is very helpful in keeping the marks of age in check.

Do not steam the face, but if the circulation is not good, place a towel wrung out of hot water on the face. Alternate with towels wrung out of cold water. Do not keep up this treatment for more than ten minutes. Then use a good cold cream.

After the toilet of the face has been completed, it is well to rub it with a silk handkerchief. This gives a polish, not a shine, to the face, which is very pleasing.

It is well to use a little alcohol after your bath, or, indeed, at any time. Alcohol toughens the skin, and gets it into condition to resist the onslaught of sun, wind or cold.

A Turkish bath, now and then, is excellent for opening and cleansing the pores. If you take a salt rub at this time, it is very stimulating, and the skin will feel like satin when you come out from the bath.

An oil rub, especially if your skin is dry and harsh, will be most beneficial and will help to put you into normal condition. The Greek bath, in which seven parts of pure olive oil and one part of lavender water are used, is especially refreshing. Rub the mixture well into the skin, being careful to keep the body very warm; take this bath for three successive nights.

When you come in in the evening, and are going out again into the air, it is a wise precaution to cleanse the face with a good cold cream or olive oil. If you have never tried this you will be a trifle abashed at the amount of mother earth that will come off on the face cloth. If you are afraid that this will leave the face greasy, you may use a powder made of prepared chalk, seventy-five parts, and zinc oxide twenty-five parts.

Will any preparation of cold cream make the hands soft and clean again after using gasoline and coal oil when filling lamps and an oil stove and getting oil all over you? I have used glycerine, but did not like the result very much. With cold cream, I washed my hands first in warm water, applied it then, have said to darken the skin. That may, however, not be so, as I am out in the open all very much and "lanolin" may have nothing to do with it.

My hands are full of little lines all over them. My face is wrinkling, and since I must use the warm bath daily I feared that that may be the cause.

GRATEFUL READER.
Rubbing the neck and arms briskly with clear alcohol before exposure acts as a preventive from taking cold. I advise you not to use the salt water on your face, as it is very bad for the complexion. You can take the bodily bath without wetting your face, I should think.

think, I am giving you formula for a cream to whiten and soften the hands. Glycerine and lemon juice is also excellent for this purpose and will remove all stains. Put into a bottle two ounces of glycerine, two ounces of water, four teaspoonsful of lemon juice and a few drops of carbolic acid. Shake well. After washing the hands, dry them thoroughly and rub a little of this mixture into them.

To Whiten the Hands.
Lanolin, 100 grams; paraffin (liquid), 25 grams; extract of vanilla, 10 drops; oil of rose, 10 drops.

Mix and apply when necessary.

Found Dye Most Successful
I saw in your paper about two years ago a recipe for changing gray hair to its natural color. I cut it out, but have lost it. It was very good, and I would be very thankful if you would repeat it. I would also like a remedy for removing wrinkles from between the eyes. A SUBSCRIBER.

To Restore the Natural Color of the Hair.
(A physician's prescription.)
Sugar of lead, 1/2 ounce; iac sulphur, 1/2 ounce; essence of bergamot, 1/2 ounce; alcohol, 1/2 pint; glycerine, 1 ounce; tincture of cantharides, 1 ounce; ammonia, 1/2 ounce. Mix all in one pint of soft water. Apply to the roots of the hair, which must be clean. The dye should never be applied if there is any irritation or abrasion of the scalp.

Massage will do more than anything else to remove the wrinkles.

To Make the Hair Curl
Will you please repeat as soon as possible your formula for "curling" for keeping the hair in curl? I have used it with success, but the quantity I had put up is exhausted, and I cannot find the clipping I cut from your paper.

Also, will you please tell me what is good for a flabby skin? I wash my face at night with hot water and castile soap, followed by a dash of clear, cold water, but my skin wrinkles very easily, especially around my mouth and chin, and is not firm. Hope this, my first request, will not find its way into your waste paper basket. A. J. W.

I repeat the formula for curling with pleasure. Try gentle massage with a good skin food to improve flabbiness of the skin.

Solution to Keep Hair Curled.
Take of gum arabic one ounce; good moist sugar, 1/2 ounce; pure hot water, 1 pint. Dissolve. When this solution is cold, add Alcohol, 3 fluid ounces; bichloride of mercury and salicylic acid, 5 grains each. The last two should be dissolved in the alcohol before admixture. Lastly, add enough water to make the whole 1 quart. Put in perfume, with cologne or lavender water. Moisten the hair with the fluid before putting it in papers or pins.

LOCAL NEWS

Mr. Harry Ashcroft left on Saturday for Nelson.

Dr. B. R. Hsley V.S. visited town over Sunday, returning to Vernon on Monday.

Mrs. E. R. Bailey left on Friday for Vancouver where she will spend a month with friends.

Mr. R. Layritz, the well-known nurseryman of Victoria, arrived on Saturday and spent a few days seeing the valley.

Mr. L. Holman finished harvesting his tobacco crop on Friday and secured it in fine condition. He hopes to have 20,000 lbs. of tobacco. The rest of the tobacco grown in the valley this year will probably be all gathered in this week.

Messrs. R. Hall and F. Conkling and families left on Monday for the Coast, where they will attend the exhibitions at Victoria and New Westminster. Thereafter, they will visit Ontario and the Eastern states and Mr. Hall and family will probably make a trip to England.

Mr. R. D. Sullivan returned from England on Monday after a three months' visit. He brought the news, which old-timers will be glad to hear, that Mr. Jas. Carlyle has made a good sale of his mining property in the Queen Charlotte Islands, having already received a payment of 10 per cent on a consideration of $150,000.

Mr. D. W. Younge left on Tuesday for Sumatra, where he was formerly engaged in the cultivation of tobacco, which he is taking up again. He will travel via Vancouver, Yokohama, Hong Kong and Singapore, the journey occupying from five to six weeks. Mr. Younge hopes to return here in a few years' time to settle.

Friends of Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Elliott will be sorry to hear of the misfortune that has befallen their little daughter, five years of age, while visiting at Bluevale, Ont., with her mother. She fell from a horse and broke her right leg below the knee. At last accounts, the little sufferer was getting along nicely, but the accident will have the effect of completely spoiling the pleasure of Mrs. Elliott's trip.

The first sitting of the Small Debts Court for Kelowna was held on Wednesday of last week, Mr.
J. F. Burne presiding. Judgment was given in favour of the original Kelowna Meat Market against Mr. C.
Blackwood for the sum of $39.00.
Summonses were issued in three other cases, resulting in their being settled out of court, so that the establishment of the Court is already having a beneficial effect in the collection of delinquent accounts.

Prov. Constable Rose and City Constable Hidsen got on the track of three suspicious characters on Tuesday who had been staying all in one room at one of the hotels in town while eating at separate tables and ignoring each other in public. One of the men pestered citizens by begging under the pretence of selling shoe laces, using some more or less spurious injuries, alleged to have been received in the mines at Phoenix, as a plea for charity. He boldly invaded places of business, and the police put him down as a scout for the other two, noting the position of safes and cash drawers so as to enable them to do a little burglary later on. They were watched closely and, whether conscious of it—as many crooks seem to be, possessing what is almost another sense in regard to perception of danger—or deterred by the unusual number of people moving about during the early morning hours on account of a dance in Ray-mer's Hall, nothing untoward occurred.
Two of the men were arrested yesterday morning, the third managing to get on board the "Okanagan." The captured men gave their names as James Tracy and William Higgins. They were haled before Police Magistrate Burne, pled guilty to vagrancy, were fined $5.00 each and were ordered to be deported, which was promptly done by the morning boat. The one that begged had in his possession about $20.00 in dimes and other small change, his fleecings of a soft-hearted public. The police at Vernon were warned to be on the look-out for the trio, so they may get another taste of what is good for them.

TWO MANY SCHOOL BOOKS

To the Editor,
Kelowna Courier.

Dear Sir,
The McBride government has authorized a new geography, a new British history and a new arithmetic for 1908. We have now four geographies. The new arithmetic consists of three parts, No. 1, 35 cents; No. 2, 40 cents, and No. 3, 45 cents. It will thus cost a family $1.20 for arithmetics instead of 25 cents as at present.

Will the people allow the government to impose this upon them? Let them send delegates to the convention of trustees at New Westminster to oppose such a proposition.

Mr. J. R. Campbell went to Pen-ticton on Wednesday to wire Mr. F. H. Lathimer's house for electric light.

Mr. Walter Fuller left for New Westminster on Monday to take a commercial course in Columbian College.

The Kelowna football team retrieved their lost laurels by defeating the Lumby team at Vernon on Tuesday by 1 goal to 0. The match was begun on Monday afternoon, but play had to be abandoned owing to the drenching rain after half an hour's struggle in which neither side scored. It was resumed next morning and was a hard-fought battle, as the score would indicate. Kelowna scored in the first forty-five and Lumby strove desperately to pull even, but could not overcome the stubborn Kelowna defence and the invaluable Phair in goal. The return match will be played here next week, if no hitch occurs in the arrangements. We see by the "Okanagan's" report of the game that "Lumby was picked to win but unfortunately muffed things once or twice." Why this evident bias against Kelowna so characteristically Vernonee? Was it not equally unfortunate that Kelowna muffed a few also and did not pile up more than the one solitary goal?

CITY COUNCIL

A brief session of the Council was held on Tuesday evening. Only a bare quorum was obtained, Aids. Gaddes and DeHart being absent.

A petition was laid before the Council praying that a by-law be passed in accordance with the Shops Regulation Act, making compulsory the closing of all retail stores, except those specially excepted by the Act, every night at 6 p.m. except on Saturdays and nights before public holidays. The petition was signed by nearly every business man in town. It was referred to the City Solicitor with instructions to prepare a by-law to give effect to its prayer, if found in order.

By-Laws 30 and 31, relating to waterworks and the purchase of lands for school purposes, were read a third time.

The by-law regarding the duties of the City Constable was referred to the City Solicitor for advice as to amendment.

The Mayor, City Solicitor and Ald. Stirling were constituted a committee to go into the matter of electrical wiring of houses with a view to the preparation of a by-law to regulate the work.
